U. F. A. NOMINATING CONVENTION TO MEET IN STONY, SATURDAY

Delegates from All Over Stony Plain Constituency to Assemble Here to Choose a Candidate by Ballot.

EVERY LOCAL SENDS DELEGATES.

Saturday next, March 30, will be the big UFA Day in Stony Plain. On that date delegates from all Locals in Stony Plain Constituency will meet, for the purpose of choosing a standard-bearer to represent them at the forthcoming election for Assemblamen in June. The delegates have been elected according to the numerical strength of each Local—one delegate to each 100 members.

The convention has been called by the executive committee of the Constituency Association, of which Mr. B. Barrow is Pres.; Mr. Partridge is Vice Pres.; H. C. Mathews is Secretary.

The chairman has not, as yet, been appointed, but he is likely to be a delegate with voting power—present the concurrence of the right mix-up at the 1930 nominating convention, when a tie vote was to be decided by the Chair, and Chairman Schofield did not have the necessary qualifications to vote and break the tie.

No one, so far as can be learned, is out in the open with a straight forward declaration of his intention to be a nominee, and the probability is that a "dark horse" may get the nomination—as in 1930.

There seems to be a yearning on the part of UFA men hereabouts, to have a candidate from a more central part of the Constituency than has been the case for the past five years; but this may not count for much when the balloting starts, as the majority of the delegates are expected to come from points in the west and southwest portions of the Constituency.

FARMER CHARGED WITH FALSE PRETENCES.

At the local Court on Saturday last, the Reeve and Councillors of Ings Municipality appeared in a case against a farmer of the Manly District, the charge being "false pretences." A year or two ago this farmer was dispossessed by a trust company. The authorities procured temporary quarters for him and his family, and relief was given. At the hearing on Saturday it was made to appear that this farmer was selling products from his farm, and had neglected to apply the proceeds to the support of his family. This farmer's last shipment of hogs from his farm is said to have netted him around $97.

On the conclusion of the evidence, Magistrate McCulloch committed the accused for trial, and allowed him out on bail in his own Recognizance.

Is Democracy A Failure?

Articles appearing in this column from week to week have, over a considerable period of time, had two main objectives—to convey information and to provoke constructive thought on the part of the reader. At the same time an earnest endeavor has been made to refrain from discussion of questions which are the subject of partisan political controversy or of sharp differences of opinion arising out of racial or religious views. In the present disturbed state of the world, when practically every financial, economic and social question has become part and parcel of some political creed it is no easy matter for any writer, unless he confines himself to meaningless platitudes, not to appear to take sides and express views which others may interpret as somewhat partisan in character one way or another. Notwithstanding this difficulty a honest effort has been made in this column to steer clear of partisanship while at the same time in discussing matters of public interest to give some point and value to these articles.

The writer is firmly convinced that what is needed at all times, and never more so than at present, is adherence to well grounded sound principles, the dissemination of accurate information, and clear constructive thinking on the part of each individual citizen. A demagogue may be clever and interesting and able to sway a mob, but he is not a safe and constructive leader and a mob is a dangerous thing.

This week we propose to submit a few questions, but do not intend to answer them. Rather our object is to have the reader answer them for himself or herself; in other words, do their own thinking.

General Hugh S. Johnson, until recently director of Roosevelt's NRA program, stated the other day that "democracy is the best government in the world for peace and prosperity, but it is the worst government in the world for a great war or a great crisis." Is this true, and if it is true what does such a statement or situation imply? Does it mean that democracy as a system of government is right, but that the people who constitute the democracy, and therefore the government, are unreliable and cannot be trusted? Is it the system or the people who are weak? Does it mean that when things are proceeding smoothly and the people have a minimum of worries, they are careless, thoughtless, indifferent? Does it mean that when a crisis develops these same people become panic stricken, emotional and reckless, ready to act precipitately without taking thought of the ultimate consequences of their action?

Does General Johnson's statement, if true, imply that the nations of the world should abandon democracy as a system of government and revert to more autocratic and dictatorial forms of government, thereby relinquishing the political freedom which is now theirs, and entrusting to such more autocratic governments full control at all times, in peace and prosperity as well as in times of war, emergency and crisis?

If democracy is not to be abandoned, and we are not to accept Communism, Fascism, Socialism, or other forms of government which involve abandonment of existing democratic political rights and freedoms, how is democracy to be made safe for the world at all times, because it cannot be thrown into the discard in times of trouble and emergency and resurrected and made to function efficiently the moment the crisis passes?

It will be admitted that with the coming of what has been termed the Industrial Revolution of the Nineteenth Century, human society was completely reorganized. The worker has risen from his old feudal state and there has been an extraordinary rise in wage levels and living standards. With this rise of the economic status of the worker there has been an even more pronounced rise in his social and political status. Public schools, newspapers, labor unions, and the influence of wage-earners as consumers have established the political power of the workers and privacy producers. The universal ballot, without property or educational qualification, have given control of government to the masses of the people.

Commenting on this development a professor of economics in one of the great American universities has written: "Here lies the danger of injury to progress. This power has been obtained, naturally enough, in advance of economic knowledge. Visionary theorists and self-seeking politicians may guide and direct it into perilous paths. Nobody wants to throw back this tide of democracy. Nobody can. But it needs to learn self-control and to gain understanding. It has neither at present."

Is this professor of economics right? Is democracy endangered by lack of self-control and understanding on the part of those very people who have the most to lose and suffer if democracy is lost to the world, and who have the most to gain and enjoy if democracy is maintained and made to function in times of emergency and crisis as in times of peace and prosperity? In a word, are our present political rights and power under democracy to be unthinkingly utilized in a time of stress and emergency to overthrow and destroy democracy itself? Are people going to prove the truth of General Johnson's observation that democracy is not a safe system in times of crisis?

How can people be taught self-control in times of emergency? How can the tendency to panic be overcome? How can understanding be given to the masses so that they will refrain from panic and exercise self-control and thus overcome the crisis and prevent the taking of disastrous action? How, when there are always demagogues, agitators, self-seekers whether in politics or other spheres, ever ready to inflame and mislead the masses, are these masses of voters who to-day control all governments, going to be educated to think for themselves, refrain from being influenced by mob psychology, and exercise self-control through the obtaining of sound knowledge and an understanding of basic irrefutable principles?

Doctors advise this natural corrective for Constipation! Not a drug . . . safe, effective, economical!

Stop sour stomach, bad breath, headaches and all constipation ills. You can do it easily, cheaply with Quaker Bran.

Quaker Bran, the coating of the wheat, is milled so soft it cannot irritate. Yet it is effective. It works with nature to produce normal, healthy bowel movement, surrounding the intestinal muscles to normal activity.

Remember, Quaker Bran is different from all prepared bran cereals. It is pure bran, uncooked—untreated—undiluted. For these reasons it is definitely richer in mineral and vitamin content.

Bells Rung Electrically

Italian Villagers Looked For Miracle Until Mystery Solved

When they heard the bells of the little church of Santa San Pietro ringing for a number of days and nights, apparently by themselves, the villagers of Lucca, Italy, thought it portended a miracle. The clappers of the bells were tied and the parish priest locked the bell tower and put the key in his pocket. But still the bells went on ringing. Finally the local electrician discovered the bells were being rung electrically as the overhead wire for the tramway line between Lucca and Magliano had come into contact with the belfry. Now the villagers are able to sleep again.

Cheerful Factors

Moderate Improvement Shown Is Expected To Continue

"The moderate improvement reported a year ago may be expected to continue," the fourth annual "Farm Outlook for Saskatchewan" prepared by Dr. William Allen and Professor E. C. Hope of the department of farm management of the University of Saskatchewan, predicted. Wheat doubtful but more likely to rise than decline, some improvement over last year in prices for beef cattle, dairy cows and butter, rising prices for sheep and work horses, and a rise in wool towards the end of the year, are some of the cheerful factors indicated.

DOUBLED UP WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his friends declared he would never work again. Although he is 70 years old, he proved they were wrong. Read what he says—

"I am seventy years of age. Last Christmas I was completely doubled up with rheumatism. I could not brush my hair nor wash myself. People said I might never work any more. I am working harder than a young man to-day. Thanks, many thanks to Kruschen Salts. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to many. I could not get in or out of bed myself, nor sit up. But see me work now—12 hours a day sometimes. Kruschen Salts have done it."

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. In addition, there are still other salts in Kruschen which prevent food fermentation in the intestine, and thereby check the further accumulation, not only of uric acid, but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

President Of Canadian Legion Makes Plea For Scientific Study Of Conditions of War Veterans

The present inquiry into the unemployment situation among ex-service men was not "a big, wide, rambling one," Brigadier-General Alex. Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, told the Hyndman commission at Ottawa. It was an effort on the part of the organized veterans to secure a scientific study of conditions as they exist and to contribute to that study the experience and wisdom of the veteran body of Canada.

The commission is under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice Hume, president of the pension appeal court, and includes Col. C. B. Price of Montreal and Mr. E. W. G. of Toronto. General Ross emphasized that the ex-service men were "not after money." He did not want the government to make any expenditures on them; but they did want to assist the government to ensure that what expenditures were made would be made scientifically and with proper regard to economy and usefulness.

Unemployment bore more heavily on ex-service men than on the rest of the community and even with the return of normal conditions, said General Ross, it would be difficult for the warless veterans to be speedily, or profitably, absorbed in industry.

The Legion president summarized his conclusions as follows:

"During these years of depression there has grown up a great army of youth, clamoring, and rightfully clamoring, for admission to trade and industry wherein they can work out their destinies, as they are entitled to do. They are young, generally well educated and capable of rendering efficient service.

"The unemployed ex-service man has to meet this competition, subject to the following handicaps:

"The average age of the group is believed to be approximately 47 years.

"By enlisting for service of his country, and while he may have returned physically unimpaired, yet he sacrificed opportunity.

"There is a large proportion of unskilled labor. Thousands of boys between the years of 16, 17 and 18, or thereabouts, rushed from school to the forces. For years their early move was ordered and they returned grown men, totally unacquainted with the struggle for economic existence.

"So many suffer from war disability. According to the figures for 1934 there were then in Canada 77,855 disability pensioners, of whom 50,677 were in receipt of pensions assessed at less than 40 per cent. and with average pension, exclusive of dependents, of $210 per annum.

"The performance of Canada in accepting the War Veterans' Allowances Act, accepted the principle that in modern warfare there were intangible disabilities resulting from nervous or other form of strain, and, as a result, during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1934, 3,009 ex-service men under the age of 60 years were classified as permanently unemployable. It is reasonable to suppose that a very much larger number are practically unemployable.

"Continuous unemployment has affected these men more seriously than in the case of other unemployed. They are conscious of having served their country well, they feel that they have been forgotten, and it rankles, and they worry over their children. They feel that an ex-service man's children should be brought up to be self-respecting citizens, not objects of relief."

The ex-service group, said General Ross, was a federal responsibility for the following reasons:

"First, because to a very large degree their physical and industrial training cannot be recovered from war service; second, because they are handicapped by lack of training and opportunity as a result of service and, third, because it is well known that recruiting was not uniform throughout Canada and it is unfair that communities from which there was practically a 100 per cent enlistment should now have to bear the burden of these aging men, while others, from which the response was not so great, should escape such a burden.

It is only through federal intervention that this burden can be uniformly distributed and the relief afforded uniformly effective. There is abundant evidence that many municipalities in Canada regard their responsibility towards unemployed ex-service men in this light, with the result that ex-service men and their families often suffer accordingly.

In conclusion General Ross urged that special machinery be devised to deal with every case receiving aid. Government aid and voluntary effort were an ideal combination in that they would free the situation from the influence of politics and departmentalism.

GARDENING

Gordon L. Smith

Starting Seed Indoors

If the seed is started indoors, from two to three weeks can be saved with many flowers and vegetables. In districts where the growing season is rather short, certain things must be grown in this way if bloom or maturity is to be guaranteed. Among the flowers are pansies, asters, marigolds, zinnias, petunias, cosmos, snapdragons, and snapdragons, though with the possible exception of the petunia and aster, good results can also be secured in the warmer sections of the Dominion from seed sown in the open ground. With vegetables there are peppers, tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, egg plants, brussels sprouts, broccoli, celery and head lettuce. Naturally, when sown under glass in March, and set out as well started plants in May, such things are away ahead of seed sown in the open ground after the spring frosts are over.

Add New Things

Much of the interest in flower gardening lies in trying something new. Of course it is not advisable to make over the whole garden each spring, nor should one abandon completely all those old favorites which have done well in the past, but without something entirely new each season, some interest will be lost. In a special part of every seed catalogue will be listed the very latest creations in both the flower and the vegetable kingdoms. Certain flowers which were always double before now appear in a single type, or perhaps a new distinct color has been added. Giants have been dwarfed, like the new tiny zinnias, or very much increased height, added to something which a few years ago could only be secured in midsize size. Practically all the leading flowers may now be secured in both doubles and singles.

When To Plant

The first vegetables to be planted are those things that are very hardy and will stand a fair amount of frost. These should be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked. The large majority of the type of which the leafy part is eaten like lettuce and spinach, though also included will be the radish, garden pea, onion, beet and carrot. Later when the weather has turned definitely warmer, and there is little danger of frost, in go the second group, such as beans, cabbage plants, potatoes and corn. These are followed by melons, squash, cucumbers and pumpkins, vegetables that cannot stand any frost whatever and will not make growth until both the air and soil are warm. The above are general first planting rules only. With most vegetables successful planting is desirable, a little of the seed sown each week or ten days from first planting date on, so that the harvest will be spread over weeks instead of days.

Wealth in Muskrat Industry

Ranching Area Now Being Surveyed In Northern Manitoba

Furnished with startling proof of wealth producing possibilities in the muskrat industry, the provincial government has placed a survey party of 40 men in northern Manitoba to map out a muskrat ranching area of 700,000 acres between The Pas and Cedar Lake.

Trapped almost bare of muskrat life in past years, this area is staging a great comeback as evidenced in the success of Thomas Lamb, fur rancher, who leased 54,000 acres from the province three years ago and last season trapped 12,000 muskrat. Three years ago only 40 muskrat houses were found on the Lamb ranch. To-day as the result of careful protection there are 9,000 "rat huts".

It is estimated by authorities that the area, under proper protection and with scientific conservation, is capable of producing at least $155,000 muskrat pelts a year, and this is held to be a conservative estimate.

New Mountain Range

Discovered By Young U.S. Explorer In Yukon Territory

Discovery of a hitherto unrecorded mountain range and a large glacier in the southwestern corner of Yukon Territory has been reported to the National Geographic Society by Bradford Washburn, young explorer of Cambridge, Mass. Washburn telegraphed from Carcross, the expedition's base camp had been established near the tongue of the unknown glacier which descended toward for nearly 50 miles into the Alaskan valley from the peak of Mount Hubbard, one of the highest of the St. Elias range.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

FLOWER PICTURES

Your flowers may wither and die but a picture of them will live forever.

It would be quite unusual to find a mother, wife or sister who has not a potted plant, vase of artificial flowers or an object of art in the house that for one reason or another has become the "favorite." Flowers are much like friends. You no doubt like and respect all of the friends you associate with socially or you wouldn't seek their companionship nor accept their hospitality. There is invariably, however, one or two you like particularly well. There is something about them that appeals to you. Their very presence cheers you. It may be their personality, their manner of speech, their consideration of others, even their whimsicality or many other things referred to and classified under the small but greatly publicized word—"fit."

"We can't say that flowers have 'fit.' That's stretching things a little too far; but they do have way of becoming a bright spot in our lives.

Why not keep a record of their growth and beauty with snapshots? You can take good pictures of flowers with any camera in the house or outdoors but to-day let's discuss pictures of flowers in the house.

Proper lighting is the foundation for good flower photography. It should be remembered that shadows are necessary to properly reproduce form in any graphic illustration. In outdoor photography natural lighting is depended upon so it is necessary to wait until the sunlight comes from the right direction to get the proper lighting for your subject. In this respect indoor picture taking has the advantage. You make and place your own lighting.

As a general rule, bright direct overhead light is not desirable so

Story Of Fish Food Tells Of Utilization Of The Energy From Sun's Rays Falling On Ocean

Pre-Cooling Dressed Poultry

Very Necessary To Avoid Any Freezing During Process

The object of pre-cooling dressed poultry before packing is to remove the animal heat from the fowl as quickly as possible. The loss in weight during pre-cooling is usually about one-quarter per cent. of the original weight of the birds. Thus, as Dr. W. H. Cook, of the National Research Council of Canada points out, one ton of poultry will give off about five pounds of moisture or enough to saturate 17,000 cubic feet of air at 32 degrees Fahrenheit. Poultry should be pre-cooled at from 30 to 32 degrees Fahrenheit, this being the lowest temperature that can be employed without freezing. It is particularly important to avoid freezing, even at the surface, if the product is to be held in the chilled condition. In a room 30 degrees Fahrenheit poultry can be cooled from a temperature between 80 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit to within 2 degrees of the room temperature (30 degrees) in 10 or 11 hours, and to the room temperature in from 20 to 24 hours. Ideally, poultry should be packed at the temperature at which it was pre-cooled, but for the comfort of the graders and packers it is customary to work at a somewhat higher temperature.

The skin of white whales from Hudson Bay region is exported and used in fine leather goods.

Because the sea is full of diatoms and copepods the energy from the sun's rays falling on the water is made available to man.

Perhaps for most people, however, that statement needs amplification or explanation before it will be fully understood. The average man probably doesn't know a great deal about diatoms and copepods, though the words may be commonplace terms to the scientist.

An extract from a recent paper by Dr. J. L. Hart, a member of the staff of the Pacific Fisheries Biological Station conducted at Nanaimo, B.C., by the federal authorities, explains the matter concisely and clearly, and is likely to be of interest. Dr. Hart was writing of the British Columbia pilchard, which are a part of the raw material of Canada's fish canning industry and are used also in producing large quantities of fish meal and oil. Where, he said, do the pilchards find food which can enable them to provide for the needs of the water life of all annually, and he went on to answer the question in these words:

"The pilchard has two main items of diet—minute, free-floating plants, called diatoms, and small relatives of the shrimp, called copepods. The copepods are the tiny plants and diatoms, and other very small plants. By means of their green pigment these microscopic plants make use of the radiant energy of the sun's light to transform the small amounts of carbon dioxide dissolved in the sea water into the food of the water life. In stores of goods, and thus they retain the energy for future use. However, the pilchard comes along, eats diatoms and copepods, digests them, and rebuilds them into its own kind of oil and flesh. In this way the energy of the sunlight falling on the ocean is made available to man."

Of course, this doesn't happen only in the case of pilchards alone. Other fish get their food in the same way, eating diatoms and copepods and, in some cases, smaller fish which have eaten these tiny plants and creatures. The situation, as Dr. Hart points out, is entirely analogous to the case of sheep or other land animals which by grazing in the field accumulate the energy which has been fixed, chiefly as carbohydrates, by the green pigments of the grass.

Paving Slabs From Refuse

British Towns Using Idea To Keep Taxes Down

Household refuse is helping to keep the taxes down in some British towns. After passing through the furnace at the local dust destructor the rubbish, in the form of sludge, is taken out and cooled. Then it is crushed, mixed with cement and water and subjected to very high pressure in a giant press. Moulded slabs are thus formed. After being stacked in the open, a kind of "curing" process, they are used to make pavements throughout the town. In one South Coast town 600 paving slabs are made per week. The broken slabs are sold to the residents, who use them for making crazy pavements in their gardens. It is estimated that this method of using up household rubbish saves the town hundreds of pounds in the course of a year.

The Best Citizen

One Who Has Welfare Of Community At Heart

Of all the best talents, that of being a good citizen is the greatest, and for many in our large cities, the least expressed. To be a true neighbor, citizen, patriot—to take on the State, so that what it does, you do; to have the State within you, so that all that wounds public life hurts you—is to receive the top record of existence, to lay hold of the most vital of all the strands of life—goodwill.

PETROLEUM

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Petroleum consists chiefly of a mixture of compounds known as hydrocarbons. It is found in large quantities in California, in Oklahoma, in Russia, Mexico, the Dutch East Indies, Galicia, Persia, and Rumania. In 1923 the world's production of crude petroleum was about 1,000,000 barrels.

Crude oil is trapped in what the geologist calls an anticline, which is a sort of inverted bowl of clay or shale, and is reached by drilling wells. The first oil well in America was dug by Colonel Drake at Titusville, Pennsylvania, in 1859.

Russian petroleum is found in and around Baku, near the Caspian Sea. History tells us that as far back as 600 B.C. "the eternal fires of Baku" attracted the fire-workers.

Petroleum is separated into various products by a process known as fractional distillation. The compounds which make up petroleum boil at different temperatures, and hence they can be separated by distillation. One fraction comes off as a vapour at a certain temperature, and is collected in the receiver of the still. When most of this fraction has been boiled off the temperature is increased, and another receiver placed in the still to collect this fraction of the petroleum.

Petroleum contains gases in solution, such as methane (marsh gas) and ethane. When the crude oil is heated gently these gases are driven off and used as fuel for the manufacture of carbon-black, which is of value in the paint industry. As the temperature is slowly increased liquids which are known as naphthas come off as vapours, and are condensed by cooling to liquids again. The scientist finds that these liquids consist chiefly of benzene. This fraction of the petroleum is used as a solvent in the rubber and varnishes. The next fraction is gasoline, which is used extensively as motor fuel and as a solvent. Kerosene (coal-oil) comes off next and is used as an illuminant and a fuel. After the kerosene is distilled off, lubricating oils and paraffin are obtained. The far-value material which is left in the still is used as artificial asphalt and as a source of a light, porous coke.

FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICE

As the annual award for distinguished service to the Canadian mineral industries, the medal of pure Canadian platinum shown above, was made to S. J. Blaylock, noted Canadian mining executive of Trail, B.C. The first of the platinum medals, designed by the famous sculptor, Tait McKenzie, was struck at the Royal Mint in Ottawa.

New Style Torpedo

Invention Of Italian Scientists Does Not Warn Of Approach

A torpedo which gives its victims not even the present momentary warning of its approach is to be added to the submarine terrors of the next war. Two Italian scientists have produced a torpedo which leaves no track. The motive power is ammonia gas, which dissolves instantly in water. Present day torpedoes driven by compressed air, leave a tell-tale track of air bubbles. These can be sighted at a distance and the victim is thus given a slight chance of manoeuvring out of danger.

Sees Large Tourist Business

Banner Year Predicted By Official Of Travel Bureau

Prediction 1935 would be a banner tourist year with business approximating the $300,000,000 peak year of 1929 was made by D. D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Travel Bureau, Ottawa, in addressing the Advertising Club of Montreal.

The tourist dollar was the "healthiest money" the Dominion could hope to receive this year and in the years to come, he said, as it increased general employment and made possible greater distribution of the products of the farm and stream.

Workers' Rights

Need Of Amicable Arrangements Between Masters And Men

Acceptance of the workers' right to live comfortably and participate in their part of the direction of industry was set forth by one of the foremost figures in Canada's mineral industry as tantamount to preservation of existing social and industrial fabrics.

Selwyn Gwilym Blaylock, vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., Trail, B.C., invited 300 members of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy to study the "co-operative committee" system his company has substituted for trade unionism.

Declaring government labor legislation or state-controlled industry quite inadequate, the president of the Institute stressed the need of amicable arrangements between employers and employees to put industry and commerce on a sound basis.

Mr. Blaylock's address featured the closing day of the Institute's three-day meeting in Winnipeg. Mr. Blaylock was presented a platinum medal for his "outstanding contribution" to the mineral industry.

LESSONS FROM THE LETTERS OF PETER

Golden text: Grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. II. Peter 3:18.

Lesson: I. Peter 5:6-11; II. Peter 3:14-15.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 55:6-13.

Explanations And Comments

Through Antagonisms to Perfection: I. Peter 5:6-11. Humble yourselves under the strong hand of God then, so that when it is time, he may raise you; let all your anxieties fall upon him, for his interest is in you (Moffatt's translation). The last clause in the Greek reads literally, "because he has you in his heart."

Be sober, be watchful. "See to it that you are not intoxicated, drugged into any perilous stupor. Keep your head clear. Be calm in sleep. There are perils in sensationalism, and there are perils in an encroaching drowsiness. There is an excessive emotionalism which is the peril of all revivals. And there is the moral stupor which is the issue of a growing indifference."

Your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, is seeking whom he may devour. "I think there is something very suggestive in the figures employed by the Bible to describe the approaches of the powers of evil and night. The devil has a fairly extensive wardrobe, but his common and more familiar guises are of three types:—A serpent, an angel of light, and a roaring lion. It is in one of the other of these three shapes that the forces of sin most frequently assail us. They come in the guise of the serpent! They beguile our senses. They pervert our judgment. They enchain our imaginations. We are fascinated, bewitched, paralyzed, by the influence of some illicit and unclean spell. He comes also in the guise of an angel of light! He would turn religion into this refinement; he would convert a deep devotion into a plausibility; and he would transform a hollow trust to light and sippant presumption.

And the devil also comes as a roaring lion! When the apostle wrote this letter the lion was about; Nero was at work; the Christians were being hunted unto death, in the vain attempt at stamping out their faith and devotion to the Man of Nazareth, their Saviour and their Lord!" (J. M. Jowett).

OTTAWA WILL EXTEND RELIEF ANOTHER YEAR

Ottawa—Relief agreements with the provinces will be extended for another year at an Ottawa conference with Dominion officials, it was announced in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Wesley Gordon. The present agreements lapse at the end of the month.

The house devoted some time to the government's relief bill which would extend the present blank cheque for another year. Liberals announced they would oppose it because they considered it was an admission by the government of its inability to cure unemployment and relieve widespread distress.

The labor minister said the bill was designed merely to continue the direct relief agreements with the provinces and "before this session ends, other measures will be presented, looking towards providing work for our citizens." At the moment he could not disclose the nature of the bills.

Although pressed by various Liberals and Progressives, the labor minister said it would be impossible for the Dominion to relieve municipalities of direct relief costs. There was no machinery through which the Dominion could watch its money except at prohibitive cost. It was a safeguard to have provinces and municipalities contribute, it made them zealous to see the money spent properly.

"I do not believe," Mr. Gordon said, "this form of relief (direct) can be abandoned. It may be possible to adjust it in the light of other measures which may be brought down in this house and in the legislatures, but I do not think direct relief can be abandoned."

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, announced the Liberals would oppose the bill. "After five years of administration, no relief program or program to solve unemployment has yet been placed before the parliament of Canada," he said. "When the government sought the fifth blank cheque it admitted its inability to formulate definite policies."

Another former Liberal cabinet minister, Hon. W. D. Euler, led the forces urging the government relieve municipalities of relief costs, claiming cities and towns were being pushed into bankruptcy.

Solve West's Problems

Will Repay All Debts With Return Of Normal Crops

Ottawa.—The belief that, with co-operation of governments, financial institutions of the east and the church, the problems of the west would be solved, was expressed here by Premier J. G. Gardiner, of Saskatchewan. He added that people of the west would repay a hundred fold every sacrifice which might be made by people of Canadian in assisting to maintain westerners on their land.

Premier Gardiner was addressing a meeting of the University Club of Ottawa. He said that the question to-day was whether or not the west could come back—if it could again produce the wealth it had in the past. If the west could get back to the crops and prices which prevailed before the depression he believed Saskatchewan could pay off its debt "and have money left over for gasoline and other luxuries."

Cost Of Canadian Legation

Expenses Of Upkeep Of Legation At Washington Are Announced

Ottawa.—Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington, has received $95,470 from June 1, 1934, to the present, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. This amount was for salary and expenses. Mr. Herridge's outlay for entertainment was paid out of that amount.

The total cost of the Canadian legation at Washington in that period was $338,089.

Total cost of the high commissioner's office in London, from August, 1930, to February, 1935, was $554,273, another return said. This figure includes salaries and expenses.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, the Canadian high commissioner, has in that period received $164,803, the return said, from which he was obliged to make expenditures for entertainment. Additional sums, however, totalling in the neighborhood of $5,000, were advanced to cover Dominion Day receipts.

Riot In New York

Negroes Run Wild When Told Boy Killed For Stealing

New York.—Rioters raged through Harlem, largest negro settlement in United States, bringing injuries to at least 100, besides smashing store windows and looting them of their contents.

Seven hundred policemen drawn from all parts of Manhattan which includes Harlem, and from Brooklyn to the Bronx, broke up mob gatherings but could not prevent guerrilla outbreaks. About 100 prisoners were booked at one station.

Police officials charged agitators with inciting the negroes and whites of the area to violence by telling them employees of a store had killed a young negro who was caught stealing a pocketknife.

In reality, the store manager had turned the boy loose although he had bitten the two floor-walkers who caught him.

Not until 10 hours after the trouble began could the police find the boy to prove he was alive.

Notorious "Ghost" Caught

Young Boy Responsible For Strange Happenings On Ontario Farm

Perth, Ont.—The ghost of Burgess township, who last January was responsible for mysteriously breaking windows, walking flatirons and bouncing crockery in the home of John Quinn on the shore of Black Lake, is in the custody of Ontario provincial police.

The ghost turned out to be a 13-year-old Burgess boy, who is held also on a charge of arson in connection with the fire which destroyed a barn on the farm of Michael McFarlane, a neighbor of his parents.

He is said to have admitted setting fire to the barn, and also to have told of being responsible for the mysterious goings on at the Black Lake farmhouse, which drew hundreds of curious visitors to the place, and baffled police and newspaper reporters.

Police turned the boy over to the superintendent of Lanark County Children's Aid Society, where he will be arraigned in juvenile court.

Relief Distribution

329 Carloads Of Foodstuffs Sent To West By Presbyterian Church

Toronto.—The Presbyterian Church in Canada distributed 329 carloads of relief in the form of foodstuffs to drought-stricken areas in the west in recent months, it was stated at a meeting of the board of missions here.

In addition to the food supplies, which had been collected in the east and sent to the prairie provinces and the Peace River district, 21,000 pounds of clothing were forwarded.

The number of families helped was 1,050. Mrs. W. H. Fletcher, Toronto, supervised the collection and Mrs. H. R. Horne, Regina, the distribution of articles. The church also provided 14 cases of Christmas gifts to needy families and in one instance cared for a whole community.

Building Programs

Sees Drawbacks In Scheme To Relieve Unemployment

Halifax.—Building programs designed to relieve unemployment have drawbacks, Minister of Labor Wesley Gordon advised the House of Commons.

He visualized a government building erected in a county town with attendant publicity. For a time the local situation was improved but in a few days the town became flooded with men from all parts of the country, men who either did not have jobs or whose wages were lower than those paid on the government building.

"I have seen that happen time after time," he said.

Curtail Council Rights

Alberta Legislature May Pass Bill Re Closing Of Schools

Edmonton.—Communists or others in control of municipal councils or school boards will have their rights curtailed in declaring civic or school holidays, if a legislature bill proposed is adopted.

The measure would prevent such towns Blairmore, where radicals control the administration, from declaring civic or school holidays—as was decided in Blairmore in honor of Tim Buck's visit—without first obtaining a permit from the minister of municipal affairs.

Arrests In Russia

Moscow.—Soviet authorities here announced the arrest of 1,074 members of the old aristocracy and old moneyed class. Some of them, it was said, will be tried for "activities against the state in behalf of foreign countries", while the rest will be exiled to the eastern reaches of the Soviet Union.

Rainy Season Expected

Government Entomologist Looks For End Of Drouth In West

Ottawa.—"We expect a more or less rainy season in the west this year, and that the drouth is over," declared R. Painter, entomologist in the department of agriculture, in an address here. He dealt with the ravages of grasshoppers in recent years in the west, and the methods being taken to combat them.

Mr. Painter said two or three species of grasshoppers were responsible for the "outbreaks" which cause such distress and ruin crops. They were always the pests of semi-arid countries which had periodical drouth conditions. But it was possible to kill 95 per cent of these insects by one application of "bait" consisting of bran, sawdust and poison.

During the year 1934 a total expenditure of $708,000 was involved in the three prairie provinces in the work of extermination, he said.

Election Act

Voters List Will Be Revised Between May 15 And July 15

Ottawa.—Some details of the Dominion election and franchise regulations as amended last year were understood to have been discussed at a caucus of Conservative members of the House of Commons and senate with particular reference to their bearing on the forthcoming elections.

A report that a proposal was adopted by caucus to amend the Franchise Act so annual revision of the list which the statute provides must be made between May 15 and July 1 might be waived this year was denied by a government spokesman. No such proposal was adopted nor made, he said.

Under the present act a basic list was prepared during the winter and is now practically ready for distribution. This list will be revised between May 15 and July 1, and each year thereafter on the same dates.

Regaining His Health

Expected Premier Bennett Will Return To House In Few Weeks

Ottawa.—Government supporters in the House of Commons and senate were given positive assurance by Sir George Perley that their party chief, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, had been given every reason to believe he would be back in his place in parliament within a few weeks.

So far as the best medical opinion could judge, the acting government leader told his colleagues, Mr. Bennett would be able to return to his parliamentary duties before prorogation and would be in condition to lead his party in the general election campaign. Mr. Bennett will be continued to bed for about another week, according to present progress, and will then seek recuperation at some health resort for about a fortnight.

RAREST STAMP FOR SALE

The rarest stamp in the world—it is insured for $50,000—has just arrived in England from the United States for sale in London. It is the British Guiana one cent stamp, the only one in the world, the property of Mr. Arthur Hind, who purchased it in Paris in 1922 for 300,000 francs (then worth about $37,000). Here we see the stamp being examined by Mr. Gordon Harmer, famous British stamp expert.

U. S. REMOVES ALL RESTRICTIONS AGAINST SEEDING

Washington.—Fearing a wheat shortage if another drouth—already threatened—occurs, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace announced removal of all restrictions on plantings of spring wheats in the United States.

This action followed quickly after the year's first crop report showing farmers intend to plant 17,847,000 acres of spring wheat, compared with 15,521,000 acres planted in 1934.

"The drouth quite definitely continues," in part of the west, Wallace said, adding that a survey of the situation led the administration to the conviction that "in view of the possibility of another drouth, which would seriously affect the output of wheat the government and farmers have a duty" to protect consumers against a wheat shortage.

The secretary estimated farmers will plant an additional 900,000 to 2,300,000 acres as a result of this action and would harvest between 10,000,000 and 30,000,000 bushels more. Spring wheat is normally about one-fourth of the total wheat crop.

Any surplus of wheat which may accumulate will be taken care of by the "ever-normal" granary plan, or the storing of reserves to be held against lean years, he said.

Drouth conditions are reported prevalent in the western parts of North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle and the eastern portions of Colorado, Wyoming and Montana, the secretary said.

Secretary Wallace said that while wheat supplies had been reduced to about normal, none of the factors which contributed to the 1933 surplus, such as the loss of foreign markets, had been removed.

Need Health Certificate

Bill Introduced In Alberta Legislature In Respect To Prospective Bridal Couples

Edmonton.—Bills of health will have to be produced by prospective bridal couples in this province before marriages can be performed, under a bill introduced in the legislature by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of health.

Last year a similar bill caused widespread interest and was finally withdrawn, as it was felt that the public was not sufficiently informed.

An educational campaign has been carried on in the province during the year by those approving of such legislation and Mr. Hoadley expects it to receive a more favorable reception.

The minister said the Local Council of Women, women's institutes, U.F.A., U.F.W.A., and the medical profession had approved of the proposed legislation.

Gold Production Mounts

Canada's January Output Worth Over Eight Million Dollars

Ottawa.—An increase of more than 15,000 ounces was shown in production of gold in January when the output totalled 249,029 ounces compared with 231,288 ounces in January, 1934, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

Ontario led the provinces with an output of 179,054 ounces, and Quebec second with 32,102 ounces while British Columbia was third with 25,728 ounces. Manitoba and Saskatchewan produced 11,486 ounces. Nova Scotia 580 ounces, Alberta 10 ounces, and the Yukon had an output of 23 ounces of alluvial gold.

The average price of gold in Canadian funds in January was $34.95 per ounce, valued at this price, the Canadian output was worth $8,703,564.

Edmonton.—Adoption of a compulsory coal quota system under which the eastern market would absorb part of the Alberta production was advocated in the legislature by A. Emserton, Labor member for Lethbridge.

Charges of ruthless treatment and dishonesty by some members of the R.C.M.P., repeated in the Legislature Thursday by Donald MacLeod, M.L.A. for Stony Plain, brought forth a demand from the Opposition side that the member move for an investigation before a House committee where he could produce proof. THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail," "The Canyon Trail," Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now returns to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyotl Gregg, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and then return to the Broken Spur ranch. Meanwhile at the House of Carr, Crewe and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red River to test out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the rich gold deposit mentioned in the notebook's notebook. As they return to the ranch,

(Now Go On With The Story)

He walked on up the street and never saw the tall figure of Sam Dustin standing in the shadows by the court-house door. Dustin's finger crooked in the shadows and another finger joined him; the loose, shambling shape of Peyotl Gregg.

"See that man, Peyotl!" Dustin pointed to Stone. "That man has come in to meet the man Gerald Keene, who comes on the night train. The man will call himself Keene, but his right name's Kane. You see, the old man found a gold mine and it was on the Hour-glass land. This nephew wants to find him. If he finds him . . . you'll hang. Don't forget that. I'll be at the hotel when you're ready to go back to the Broken Spur."

Peyotl gave him one frenzied glance and his right hand sought his coat pocket. Dustin gave a little gasp. The man was half-crazed with fright and murderous intent. Dustin grabbed him by the arm. A little while later lay in the corners of Peyotl's mouth and his eyes glared with a light there was no mistaking. After a dozen of those infernal cigarettes Peyotl was ready to kill and Dustin knew it.

"Don't you take a chance," he muttered. "Don't put anything at the station or in public where people can see you. Wait! You'll be sure to get a chance in the dark if you wait. I'd trail 'em if I were you and choose some dark place. Of course I don't know what you're plannin' . . . You're a damned fool, Peyotl."

He sauntered off in the dusk and Peyotl, half walking, half reeling, headed for the little station.

Stone had already picked up Carr and Crewe and was waiting at the car when the train came in with a sheet of flying sparks from the hard wheels. Stone himself was the first to leap to the steps of the Pullman and was almost knocked off his feet by the rush of a man who did not wait for the train to stop.

"Duro . . . Duro Stone, by all the gods!" . . . A great hand smote Stone on the shoulder, almost knocking him over. "Who's with you? We must get together."

"Wait a bit . . ." Stone muttered with his teeth. "Here's your present partner. . . . We'll have to get together as soon as we can. I've got a lot to tell you. We need two heads here."

The crowd prevented any exchange of confidences and then Crewe came up with old Joe Carr.

"Mr. Carr"—Stone grabbed Joe by the arm—"you wanted to meet Mr. Keene."

A hand thrust forward and old Carr seized it. This was Gerald Keene, the nephew of his old-time partner, Gerald Keene, the only man who could help him in his hour of trouble. He shook that hand as one might shake at a life-preserver flung in roaring seas.

"If you're Gerald Keene," he said, "you don't know how darned glad I am to see you. We've got a lot to talk over this very night."

"How about some grub, sir, first of all?"

"Fine. And after that we'll have a few drinks at the Silver Dollar and then home to the Hour-glass."

Those last words reached Peyotl, standing among the freight. He was satisfied now. "The party would go to the Silver Dollar and that would give him his chance. He slunk off up the street and busted himself in the Mexican quarter of the town while Stone headed with his party for the hotel.

That dinner with its long delays and frequent drinks that came slowly from the bar, kept them till nearly ten o'clock and old Joe Carr fought his way from the table in spite of Crewe. His manager saw signs of what was coming and wanted to avoid it. Carr insisted.

"Of course Keene wanted to see the sights," he explained. "I haven't been in town for a year. 'I'm a wolf and this is my night to howl.' Hell, man! Come on. No one's going to get drunk. I just want to play my old favorite 'Cripple Creek' once more. Let's get down to the Silver Dollar. They have a big lottery there at eleven."

They headed for the Silver Dollar.

CHAPTER XV.

Peyotl Gregg had friends in Seco of whom Sam Dustin knew nothing. For five years he had supposed that he was the sole source of Peyotl's dope supply but that was because Peyotl had successfully smuggled his store into the Broken Spur unknown. If Dustin had known, it would have gone hand with Peyotl. The moment he left Dustin, Peyotl sought out one of those friends.

Pascual Mendez herded sheep (and that shows how far Peyotl had fallen. Not for nothing does the proverb run "If a man will do that, he'll steal sheep"). Many of Pascual's sheep were black and Peyotl was not one of those friends.

In Mendez's stable, Peyotl took account of stock. Mendez was absent but Peyotl knew where to find what he wanted. From a hole in the trodden clay-floor he extracted an old cigar-box from which he took a red-and-green packet of those ill-favored cigarettes, lit one and sat down to think. The very first puff stimulated him; the next gave exhilaration. Dustin was a good friend who had given him excellent advice and the future seemed a golden future.

He passed rapidly from the first stage of half-lifted despair to the next, in which he saw complete fulfillment of his own desires. When he had smoked three cigarettes on an empty stomach he knew suddenly that he faced a golden future. . . . If only this man Gerald Kane . . . or Keene . . . could be removed. Who was this stranger that he should haunt a man to the gallows?

"By Gar . . ." The home-made cad satified him. . . . He flung the cigarette to the floor, stamped out the spark, felt in his pockets and laid their contents before him. . . . the stubby little Derringer pistol and three cartridges. He flicked, he thought, unseen, from Dustin's desk, a knife, a box of matches and a huge yellow-and-green bandana neckerchief that stunk and reeked of the Peyotl that he had been smoking. He very carefully loaded both barrels of the pistol, snapped it shut, wrapped it in the bandana neckerchief and thrust it into his coat-pocket on the right side.

This stranger must be removed! If he remained in Seco, his search for old man Kane, his uncle, would disclose the fact that he, Peyotl, had killed him. The result was plain.

He had heard those men say that they were going to the Silver Dollar and of all places in the Silver Dollar was the most satisfactory for the carrying out of his plans. Of course he could not go brazenly into the bar and shoot down this man Gerald Kane. That was not necessary. Some subterfuge must be devised. He felt in his pocket to assure himself that the bandana lay ready-to-hand and moved down Seco's main street toward the lights of the Silver Dollar.

He was too wise to enter that brightly lighted room where a dozen men knew him. From the back door that gave on the littered yard he studied the place.

The bar was crowded with men from the Broken Spur, the Cross Keys and with a dozen "Dry-farmers" in town for a night. On the roulette table and the chuck-a-luck stand were found a healthy business and May Wilson keeping cases at the faro table had her hands full. As Peyotl stared in through the party open back door, he realized that the setting was perfect. All he needed was the opportunity.

The elated front door slammed suddenly open and Peyotl shrank back into the dark as Carr and his party flung into the room.

Another Tradition Upset

Earth Ebbs And Flows Like Tides Of The Sea

A favorite occupation of physical scientists is the careful upsetting of history, fables, or common belief by the insertion of facts which prove or explain how things really happened.

From time immemorial the good dirt regions of earth have been considered stable. Even the Romans famed instigators of tall stories, never thought of calling the ground anything but terra firma. Now, Dr. Harlan Stearns, Harvard astrophysicist, tells us that not only are we walking on a thin upper "crust" of a wrinkled old apple called Earth, but even this crust heaves to and fro like the tides of the sea.

Everyone knows the sea has its ebbs and flows, but no one guessed that land areas could be affected likewise until Dr. Stearns said so. With superaccurate clocks or chronometers, and more careful squinting at the stars, he corrected those "clocks" to the split second and found that Europe and America drift apart as much as sixty-three feet twice daily and come together again by a similar amount. All of which means another time-worn tradition is ready for the discard.

But for all the researches, when Popeye and Barnacle Bill step ashore with their curious "measles" they can't get away with any tales about how difficult it is to get used to the billowing waves of land tides after a peaceful junk at sea. Nor is sixty-three feet enough of a variation to excuse European or American fluctuations of policy when attempts are made to agree on matters of trade, finance and world peace.—Christian Science Monitor.

The Pony Express

Was Started In United States 75 Years Ago

Just seventy-five years ago the Pony Express, which used to carry mails in the United States, was started. The most famous of these services operated between San Francisco and New York. There were 80 of the finest horsemen and 400 hardy mustangs in the service. They worked in relays of 30 to 90 miles each and covered the transcontinental journey in nine days.

The teacher asked whether any one could give her a good definition of toast. Only one hand went up.

"All right, John, you tell us about toast."

"Toast," said John confidently, "is burnt bread scraped."

Little Helps For This Week

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty, and he that rules his spirit than he that taketh a city." Proverbs 16:32.

Purge from our hearts and strains no deep and foul. Of wrath and pride, and care; Send Thine own holy calm upon the soul.

And bid it settle there.

Let this truth be present to thee in the excitement of anger—that to be moved by passion is not manly, but that mildness and gentleness, as they are more agreeable to human nature, so also are they more manly. For in the same degree in which man's mind is nearer to freedom from all passion, in the same degree also it is nearer to strength.

It is no great matter to associate with the good and gentle, for this is naturally pleasing to all, and everyone enjoys peace and loveth those best who agree with him. But to be able to live peacefully with hard and perverse persons, or with the disorderly, or with such as go contrary to us, is a great grace, and a most commendable manly thing.

The True Optimist

One Who Faces Difficulties And Tries To Overcome Them

"The true optimists of life are not those who have always 'had things easy' and know nothing of care or trouble; neither are they the ones who resolutely refuse to acknowledge the presence of sin and sorrow. They are those who determine to meet facts honestly and can give themselves eagerly, untiringly, to fighting the sin and lessening the sorrow and the pain."

HAVE YOU Digestive Troubles?

Dr. W. J. Fisher, 208 Madison, Ont., said: "I suffer from indigestion. The stomach could eat but very little food without causing distress. I grew very much discouraged. After taking Dr. Fisher's Golden Malt Digestant was able to eat, gained in weight and resumed my work." All druggists.

Italians Dislike Radio

Get More Pleasure Out Of Talking Than Listening

Out of 45,000,000 in Italy only 395,000 own radio sets. Even Austria with a bare 6,000,000 population claims to have 506,000 sets. Character of Italian tastes, illogical taxation, commercial imposture, poor programs and irksome police control are blamed. First and foremost, the people spend much of their leisure in cafes, bars, hotels, restaurants and being voluble they find in a radio a competitor who can be neither reasoned with nor bowed to silence.

SWears TO TRUTH OF STATEMENT

Mr. Sam Sansone, 44 Front Street, Toronto, tells in a sworn statement how Fruit-a-Live brought lasting relief after he had suffered badly from indigestion. He wants other sufferers to be helped as he was. This is why he gives a statement of his experience. And in order that everyone may be convinced of its absolute truth, Mr. Sansone made his statement under oath before a notary. In part, it reads: "For a long time I suffered badly from indigestion. I tried everything but I continued to get worse. I was entirely well until about 1908, when I was advised to take Fruit-a-Live. After taking them, it was not long before I was entirely well and have since then remained so. I have since then taken Fruit-a-Live and have never had any more indigestion."

Copy of Mr. Sansone's complete sworn statement will be sent to anyone who writes Fruit-a-Live, Ltd., Ottawa, Canada.

Critics of "Social Credit."

So much is being printed these days about those favoring the Douglas System or Aberhart's Plan, that few items about those who do not favor either of these schemes may not be out of place. Below are printed criticisms from public men.

EX-PREMIER Speaking of monetary reform BROWNLEE, and social credit in a recent speech in the Assembly, Mr Brownlee is reported as saying: "With all due respect to the sincerity of the person who has been suggesting such a scheme (Aberhart), I say that there is a difference of opinion on this question. I prefer the broad highway of monetary reform to taking side paths which may lead to great disappointment."

ASSEMBLYMAN "No member has yet PROUDFOOT, stood in any part of the House and said he is convinced that a workable scheme has been presented by which this province can see to it that, for the purpose of supplying food, shelter and clothing, a basic dividend of $25 a month can be paid to every adult in the province," Lorne Proudfoot, M.L.A. for Acadia, is reported as saying, in a recent speech in the House.

ASSEMBLYMAN W. H. Shields, M. L. A., SHIELDS, recognised as one of the most radical of the UFA members and also as one of the best informed men in the province on public finance and social credit questions, declared in the Assembly recently that he was convinced that no such Plan as that of Mr Aberhart could be made effective so long as Alberta remained part of the Dominion. Yet when this was discovered there would be great resentment and bitter disappointment among thousands of people who had been led to expect promised "basic dividends."

Social Credit Study Club.

That the Social Credit gospel is taking a firm hold here was further evidenced Thursday, when a number of Douglas's disciples met, to form a Social study group. The meeting was presided over by Mr W E Hayes, a newcomer to Stony. Mr T J Hardwick, who might be regarded as a charter member for Alberta for the Douglas Scheme, was present, and took part in the discussions. It is the intention of the members to become more fully informed on the principles and workings of the new movement, thru lectures, discussions and readings. At the close of the friendly discussions Thursday evening, it was agreed to hold meetings on Thursday evenings.

The Parliamentary Show.

(By J. S. Cowper.)

There are two principal debates in the life of each legislative session—the debate on the Address and the debate on the Budget. Both of these milestones have been passed in the 1935 session of the Alberta Legislature. At the time of writing members are in Committee, considering estimates of monetary requirements for each Gov't department. In common parlance, the Legislature is on its "last legs"—the last legs in fact for many members. The session is to be followed by an election when many faces will disappear from the House.

Liberal Leader Howson renewed his attacks when the salaries of Ministers came before the committee.

The Premier has been receiving salary and indemnity totaling $10,300 a year (less a voluntary contribution of $1,340 of late); Ministers receive $7800 a year (less a voluntary contribution of $840); members $1800 apiece.

Mr Howson moved the Premier's pay be fixed at $7060; Ministers $5860; members at $1500; and salary of Deputy Att. Gen. at $5000, from $6,060. The saving on salaries and indemnities would nearly be $10,000; with an additional $1500 from the Dep. Atty.-General's salary.

Important to Wheat Growers

Under wheat grading regulations coming into effect on August 1, 1935, the matter of purity of variety is one of primary importance.

Regardless of whether your wheat be Marquis, Garnet, Howard "222" or any other variety, it is desirable from a marketing standpoint that it be uniform in type. Excessive admixture one way or the other will be liable to grade penalties under the amendment to The Canada Grain Act.

"What's Wrong with Social Credit?"

When the posters were hung in two here announcing the lecture with the above caption Social Creditites and others wondered as to when side the lecturer, Mr W Mentz, would lean. When the proceedings opened Monday evening, with Mr T J Hardwick presiding, Mr Mentz did not for long leave his auditors in doubt, as at the very beginning he announced there was a possibility of Social Credit followers disapproving of his statements. He did point out what were, in his opinion, present-day obstacles, to the fulfillment of the promises of the apostles of Social Credit—the much-longed-for panacea for our present social and financial disruption. He lauded the principles of the UCF organization, and reiterated the benefits which would accrue to us by a change to that system.
